Objection

I object to the terms of this class action suit. I am currently under a 2 year contract. Since Sprint purchased Nextel, the service has declined. I want to end service on 3 phones I have with Sprint but cannot until 12-10-09.

Why do I have this current 2 year contract? Because I was in a 2 year contract with Nextel "502c" phone which was supposed to get better service immediately after merging. I faced early term fees then and they offered to change my plan because they knew my plan was not functioning as they promised. They had me over a barrel so to speak. I had 2 choices, pay early term fees or add another 2 year contract.

I have 3.5 months left on my contract. Sprint will not prorate my fees and still want to charge me $200 per phone for early termination, even though one customer service rep told me they would prorate it, but the prorated fee was $200? They way I calculate proration, the fee should be 8.33 per month on remaining months. Roughly $30 per phone or $90.00 total, NOT $600.00.

This class action suit is rewarding Sprint. $36.00 toward a $200-250 termination fee? That is a complete insult. I suppose that is all that is left over after the attorneys get their fees.

I understand why Sprint has these early term fees, but the prices they are saying these phones cost to begin with are inflated.

I am a victim of the early term fees and this suit does not help me resolve my issues. I need either forgiveness of the remaining early term fee or truly prorated fees.
